Foreword

The Clerical Directory is a mine of information of vital nature to the Church. In it are the biographies, and photographs in groups, of the 8,800 clergy—the Church's leadership—and other features.

This is the twentieth issue of the Directory, formerly Stowe's Clerical Directory, over a sixty-one year period beginning in 1898, the sixth under the aegis of The Church Pension Fund.

Several innovations of a technical nature have been introduced with this issue. Punctuation has been greatly simplified. Though requiring re-editing the full text, this step improves readability and will aid economy in the future. A new look has been given to the biography pages by notation at the top of each page of the first and last name unit, to facilitate searching as the reader thumbs his way through the book. The pages of advertising have been omitted.

The text has been set up by a recently developed machine that resembles a typewriter, although the type is of book design. The printing is by offset rather than letter-press as in the past. Both changes keep costs down. The Directory is an expensive undertaking. The costs can be met only by the widespread sale that the contents merit.

This is the third edition to carry group photographs of the clergy. Individual photographs would be out of the question. Yet from every standpoint, current and historical, photographs are desirable, and the group approach serves the purpose. Moreover the increase in sales of the Directory resulting from the photographs more than offsets the additional costs involved.

For the second time a summary of actions taken by General Convention is included, as prepared by Mr. Peter Day, the editor of The Living Church. It contains also, as the second in a continuing series, a short article by the Very Reverend Darby W. Betts entitled "The Church's Evolving Architecture 1955-1958" accompanied by photographs of interesting churches built during the triennium.

The long and exacting task of preparing the biographies has been under the efficient supervision of Sue M. Breen.
